New San Diego Charger president Gene Klein (right) and new chairman Sam Schulman (left) join hands with three of the other new owners—Pierre Salinger, Bill Fox and George Whitney—after club was purchased for a record $10 million on Aug. 25, 1966.

NEW CHARGER OWNERS

After six exciting years under the wing of Barron Hilton, the San Diego Chargers enter the 1966 American Football League season with new owners.

The club was purchased for $10 million on Aug. 25 by a group of 21 business executives headed by Eugene Klein and Samuel Schulman of Beverly Hills, Calif. It was the largest financial transaction in professional football history.

Sale was announced by Hilton, who was founder, president and with his father, Conrad Hilton, general partners of the Chargers. In the new organization to be called Chargers Football Company:

—Klein replaces Hilton as club president.

—Klein and Schulman are general partners.

—Schulman is chairman of the board.

—Barron Hilton and Conrad Hilton retain a substantial interest in the Chargers.

—San Diego newspaper publisher James Copley and restaurant owner George Pernicano retain a limited interest.

—New San Diego partners are television executives George Whitney and Bill Fox.

—Other new partners are Pierre Salinger, former White House press secretary; John DeLorean, Jack Ostrow, Burt Kleiner, Irving Levin, Barry Sterling, Robert Powsner, Lionel Bell, Ralph Shapiro, Eugene Wyman, Frank Rothman, Marvin Finell and John Quirk.

—Sid Gillman continues as general manager and head coach.

Klein, 45, is president of the National General Corportion, which has major holdings in San Diego. With pro football size of 6-foot-5, 215 pounds, he played end at New York University. He was an Air Force pilot during World War II. He is married with two children.

Schulman, 56, is executive vice-president of National General Corporation. He also attended New York University and Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. He is an avid golfer (8 handicap) and tennis player and owns a stable of race horses. He is married with two children.

Hilton said that in selling the Chargers he felt as if he was selling one of his children. "But I still have a large financial interest and always will have a large rooting interest in the team. With Gene Klein and Sam Schulman, I am leaving the operation of the Chargers in the most competent hands possible."

Previous high sale price for a professional football club was the $7.1 million paid for the Los Angeles Rams in 1962. This year, the Atlanta Falcons were stocked by the National League for an estimated cost of $8.6 million and the Miami Dolphins by the American League for an estimated $7.5 million.

Charger President Barron Hilton and San Diego Stadium Authority Chairman Al Harutunian were key figures in two major stadium events. (Above) Hilton signs agreement pledging occupancy of stadium by Chargers for 10 years. (Below) Hilton and Harutunian await signal from San Diego Mayor Frank Curran to detonate charge breaking ground for stadium.

NEW SAN DIEGO STADIUM

(Picture on Back Cover)

A great day for San Diego and the Chargers. That will be Sunday, Aug. 20, 1967, when the Chargers play the Los Angeles Rams in the inaugural game at San Diego Stadium.

Construction of the $27 million stadium was authorized overwhelmingly by a 73 per cent "yes" vote on the Nov. 2, 1965 municipal ballot. Built and operated by the City of San Diego and owned by the City-County San Diego Stadium Authority, the new stadium will be one of the finest sports facilities in the world.

The multi-purpose stadium will seat 50,000 for Charger games with 27,000 seats between the goal lines. It will have a 15,000 vehicle color-coded parking area which will provide easy access to matched color seating areas within the stadium.

San Diego Stadium is under construction in beautiful Mission Valley on a 166-acre site less than one mile from the birthplace of California, where, in 1769, Father Junipero Serra established the Mission San Diego de Alcala. Today the site is served by four major freeways.

Fans will approach the stadium along landscaped, tree-lined walkways, enter through 10 gates, be served rapidly by 48 ticket booths and gain access to seating and restaurant areas by six circular ramps, eight escalators or four elevators.

Once inside, they will find three levels and a press tier, a modern stadium club, patio restaurant and 36 conveniently-located concession stands. Seats will be the finest in individual, form-fitting chairs. The press box will have separate eating and lounge facilities.

Albert Harutunian Jr. is chairman of the San Diego Stadium Authority. Members of the Board of Governors are Dr. Albert Anderson, William Black, Paul Carter, William Elser, Norman Foster, Carl Hartnack, W. Bert Ritchey and Richard Silberman.

Frank L. Hope and Associates of San Diego is San Diego Stadium architects and engineers.

SEASON TICKET RECORD

The San Diego Chargers set a new season ticket record for the 1966 season.

As of Sept. 1, the season ticket total was 15,833. Previous San Diego high was 11,309 in 1965.

Season tickets sold in 1966 contained an option for priority seating in the new San Diego Stadium for 1967.

SID GILLMAN

A lion smoking a pipe and wearing a bow tie, Sid Gillman roars into his seventh year as head coach and general manager of the San Diego Chargers.

With Gillman there is no middle road to success in professional football. He dedicates all of his remarkable energy and acumen to the proposition that winning isn't everything; it's the only thing.

Smitten by the Gillman fever, San Diego has been the dominant team in the American Football League. The Chargers have won the Western Division Championship five times in six years and the last three in succession. They were league champions in 1963.

This year marks Gillman's 32nd anniversary as a coach and 22nd as a head coach. His career is unique in that it spans extensive periods in collegiate, National League and American League ranks. His overall won-loss percentage is .670. His record in pro football is second only to Vince Lombardi of Green Bay among coaches with at least five years experience.

The accomplishments of Gillman extend beyond wins and losses. He was a pioneer in the use of film as a coaching aid. He is constantly exploring new offensive techniques and refining old ones. An accomplished teacher, he is always the eager student.

Gillman attempts to surround himself with talented, aggressive assistants and front office personnel. Al Davis, the recent AFL commissioner, and Don Klosterman, the new general manager of the Houston Oilers, were members of Sid's first Charger staff. Among his coaching proteges are Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame and Paul Dietzel of South Carolina.

Gillman was born in Minneapolis on Oct. 26, 1911, and entered Ohio State University in 1930. As a Buckeye freshman he played baseball and basketball in addition to football. But after bypassing spring football practice in favor of baseball, he was sharply reminded of his football scholarship and played only football thereafter.

End Gillman was selected to the all-Big Ten team and made all-America Honorable Mention during his varsity years of 1931-33. He played in the 1933 East-West Shrine game and the inaugural College All-Star game of 1934.

After serving as end coach at Ohio State in 1934, Gillman took a brief fling at pro football in 1935 with the pre-NFL Cleveland Rams. He turned down subsequent offers from the old Boston Redskins (a bus ticket and $125 per game) and the Green Bay Packers (no bus ticket but $135 per game).

Gillman was an assistant coach at Ohio State, Denison and Miami of Ohio through 1943, head coach at Miami through 1947 and line coach at Army under Earl Blaik in 1948. Appointed head coach at the University of Cincinnati in 1949, he served for six years and compiled a brilliant record of 50 wins, 13 losses and 1 tie.

The pro football world was shocked when the Los Angeles Rams tapped the comparatively unknown Gillman to become their head coach in 1955, and flabbergasted when Sid piloted the Rams to the Western Division championship in his rookie pro year.

In five years as coach of the Rams—the longest tenure of any coach in L.A. history—Gillman presented a wide-open brand of football that attracted all-time National League record crowds into the L.A. Coliseum. Average game attendance in 1958 was 83,680.

When Barron Hilton formed the Chargers in 1960, he handed Gillman the coaching reins. The Chargers have been galloping ever since.

There is a dimension to Sid Gillman that the press and public often overlook in their analyses of the hard-driving, success-bent coach. This is Sid Gillman, the person—the devoted family man, the jazz lover, the golf bug, the man who is never too busy to help a friend.

Gillman, and his lovely wife of 31 years, Esther, have three married daughters—Lyle, Bobbie, Terry—one son, Tom, who is a sophomore at the University of California, six grandchildren and one pro football-sized German Shepherd named Caesar.

THEY COVER THE CHARGERS

The following men are assigned to the San Diego Chargers beat at home and on the road. Professional football releases from all teams should be directed to their attention.

JERRY MAGEE . . . San Diego Union

FRANK BOGGS . . . San Diego Evening Tribune

Sports editor and columnist of the San Diego Union is JACK MURPHY. Executive sports editor is BOB WILLIAMS.

Sports editor of the Evening Tribune is HARRY HACHE. Sports columnist is BOB ORTMAN.

Sports director of station KFMB radio and TV is LYLE BOND. Sports director of station KOGO radio and TV is AL COUPPEE.

COACHING STAFF

JOE MADRO
. . . Offensive Line

Joe Madro has been associated with Sid Gillman through 19 years at Miami U., Cincinnati, the Rams and Chargers. Just as Gillman, he played his college football (guard) at Ohio State.

Combination genial philosopher and frosty task-master, Madro has made Charger front lines a trademark of excellence.

Joe and Patricia Ann Madro have five children (Tommy Joe, Bobby Joe, Cynthia Ann, Martin and Claudia) and reside in Del Cerro.

Walt Hackett enters his fifth year with the Chargers and 16th in coaching. Under his tutelage, the Charger defensive line was No. 1 in the league against rushing last season.

Hackett was an all-conference end at Whittier College. He served in the U.S. Navy. He was head coach at Cerritos Junior College and assistant at Baylor University.

WALT HACKETT
. . . Defensive Line

Walt and Carol Hackett have three daughters (Lisa, Pamela and Janice) and reside in La Mesa.

TOM BASS
. . . Defensive Backfield

Tom Bass shifts from the offensive to the defensive backfield in his third year with the Chargers.

An energetic native Californian, Bass played linebacker at San Jose State and coached at San Jose and San Diego State. At 31, he is the youngest member of the Charger staff.

Tom and Bonnie Bass have three sons (Mike, Bobby and David) and reside in La Mesa.

CHARLIE WALLER
. . . Offensive Backfield

Charlie Waller joins the Charger staff this year after nine years at Clemson University and 20 years total experience at such other noted football schools as Texas and Auburn.

Waller was a halfback and quarterback at Oglethorpe (Ga.) College and also attended the University of Georgia. He served in the U.S. Navy.

Charlie and Maxine have five daughters (Cheryl, Karen, Mary Frances, Peggy and Patsy).

Harry Johnston is new to the Charger staff this year, but well known in San Diego football ranks.

Johnston was a 160-pound fullback at the University of Nebraska. He has 17 years coaching experience in San Diego area high schools and at San Diego State College.

HARRY JOHNSTON
. . . Linebackers

Harry and Dorothy Johnston have four children (Connie, Terry, Louisa and Fred) and reside in La Jolla.

ALVIN ROY
. . . Strength Coach

Alvin Roy begins his fourth year with the Chargers as the only strength coach in professional football.

Roy was trainer for the 1952 U.S. Olympic team and has conditioned such famed athletes as Billy Cannon, Jim Taylor, Bob Pettit in addition to the Charger players.

Roy lives in Baton Rouge, La., during the off-season. He has two daughters (Astrid and Gina).

AL LoCASALE
. . . director of player personnel

Heading up the vital scouting department for the Chargers is 33-year-old bachelor Al LoCasale.

An original staff member, LoCasale now is in his seventh year with the Chargers and his thirteenth in football as a coach or scout.

Formerly he was administrative assistant to the head coach at the University of Southern California and served on the coaching staffs at Bainbridge Naval Training Center while on active duty with the Navy and at the University of Pennsylvania, his alma mater.

Popular Jimmy Van Deusen is starting his third year as trainer of the San Diego Chargers.

Although young in years, the 33-year-old redhead is long on experience. He worked for the Lincoln, Neb., Chiefs of the old Western Baseball League for three years and as head trainer at the University of California at Berkeley for six years.

JIMMY VAN DEUSEN
. . . trainer

Van Deusen and his wife Donna have two daughters, Kathleen, 4 and Debra, 2, and reside in La Mesa.

TOM DENMAN
. . . equipment manager

A charter member of the Chargers' organization is equipment manager Tom Denman.

In addition to his primary responsibility for caring for approximately 35,000 pounds of valuable equipment and training rooms in Escondido and La Mesa, Denman enjoys the triple-threat role of team tailor, masseur and Father Confessor.

Denman and his wife, Doris, live in Claremont with their two daughters, Judy, 18, and Kathy, 9, and son Tom, Jr., 16.

FRONT OFFICE

. . . business manager

If you don't know Johnny Gough in San Diego, you just haven't been around.

The tireless, affable business manager of the Chargers served in the same capacity with the San Diego Padres Baseball Club for 10 years before switching to the football front in March of 1964.

Gough, an alumnus of Northwestern University, resides in Fletcher Hills with his wife, Wanda, and daughter, Robin.

Second-year member of the Chargers' front office staff is director of public relations Jerry Wynn.

Wynn, 36, joined the club after serving for 12 years with the Long Beach Press-Telegram as assistant sports editor and columnist covering the L. A. Rams.

A graduate of the University of Illinois, Jerry and wife, Bobby, have three children, Ronnie, 12, Susan, 10, and Nancy, 8, and live in San Diego.

JERRY WYNN
. . . director of public relations

. . . ticket manager

Ticket manager Phil Barile, the man to call for 50-yard line seats, is a charter member of the Chargers organization.

Before settling down to the football position in 1960, Barile touched most bases of Los Angeles sports. He was ticket manager of the Pan-Pacific Auditorium for four years and worked for the Dodgers, Rams and Santa Anita and Hollywood Park.

Phil's lovely wife, Louise, serves as executive secretary of the Charger Backers.

CHARLENE MESNER
. . . Secretary to Gen. Mgr.

FRANCES BEEDE
. . . Controller

GRACE CARLISLE
. . . Secretary to Bus. Mgr.

PAT ROGERS
. . . Sec. to Director of Public Relations

MARY MARQUIS
. . . Sec. to Director of Player Personnel

JAN CROWNHART
. . . Receptionist

BUD WILKINSON

SAN DIEGO CHARGERS 1966 OUTLOOK

It's a puzzlement.

For a team which has been the most successful in the American Football League . . . a team which has won five Western Division titles in six years and the last three in succession . . . a team which had a 9-2-3 record last year, everyone is feeling sorry for the San Diego Chargers.

True, the Chargers lost four excellent players (Dave Kocourek, Dick Westmoreland, Ernie Park, Jim Warren) to the Miami Dolphins and an outstanding assistant coach (Chuck Noll) to the Baltimore Colts. Also to be replaced is 315-pound Ernie Ladd.

But as coach Sid Gillman views it, "A professional football team is like my wife's wardrobe. It is subject to constant change.

"The Chargers will have to make some adjustments this season. But I'm not worried. We've lost players and coaches before. But we haven't stopped winning. We don't intend to stop now."

What does concern Gillman is the growth of competition in the American Football League.

"A few years ago we could point to only a few teams as the ones we had to beat. Now almost every club has the talent and experience to beat anyone else. It's going to be a very interesting season in 1966."

While playing the 1966 season, San Diego will have one eye peering into the future. In 1967 the Chargers move into their new $27 million, 50,564-seat stadium. It would be an appropriate edifice for a world championship flag—so believe the Chargers.

OUTLOOK BY POSITIONS

QUARTERBACK—

John Hadl was the league's No. 1 passer and guided the league's No. 1 offense in his No. 1 full year in 1965. He should be better in 1966.

The five-year veteran from Kansas passed for 2,798 yards and 20 touchdowns as the Chargers averaged 364 yards total offense per game.

A superior athlete, signal-caller and team leader, co-captain Hadl answers critics of his self-styled passing style with a blunt, "I move the ball."

Ready to support Hadl after a year of education in the taxi squad nursery is Steve Tensi, the 6-foot-5 sharpshooter from Florida State.

RUNNING BACKS—

Can Paul Lowe repeat his brilliant form of 1965? Will Keith Lincoln shake off the injury hex? How are you going to keep Gene Foster out of the starting lineup?

Sid Gillman's problems here would be another coach's blessings.

Lowe was the AFL "Player of the Year" in 1965. One of the last of the classic halfbacks with size, swift and shift, Lowe gained 1,121 yards to set a new league record and emerge as the all-time leading AFL runner.

Although sidelined by injuries for nearly half the season, Lincoln clung to his "Mr. Triple Threat" title by running for three touchdowns, catching passes for four more and passing for another.

Foster gained 469 yards in an outstanding rookie season.

RECEIVERS—

The best. That's flanker Lance Alworth. Despite devious enemy plots to defense him, Bambi caught 69 passes for 1,602 yards (second highest in AFL history and only 144 yards behind Houston's Charlie Hennigan in 1961), a 23.2 average per catch and 14 touchdowns in 1965.

Split end Don Norton, a seven-year veteran and the club's all-time leading receiver, faces a challenge from rookie Gary Garrison. The San Diego State College whiz was the No. 1 Future draft choice in 1964 and is rated a can't-miss prospect.

Jacque MacKinnon and Willie Frazier, the all-star from Houston, will battle for the tight end position, left vacant by the loss of Dave Kocourek to Miami.

INTERIOR LINEMEN—

Four of the five starters from 1965—tackles Ron Mix and Ernie Wright, guard Walt Sweeney and center Sam Gruneisen—return to give the Chargers another solid front wall.

The battle to fill the guard position vacated by Ernie Park will be waged between John Farris and Ed Mitchell. Gary Kirner adds depth to both tackle and center slots.

Coach Joe Madro calls four-year veteran Sweeney, "for size and speed, potentially the best lineman in the league."

DEFENSE

This is the question mark position because of the deflection of Ernie Ladd to Houston.

The Chargers are fortunate to have highly-rated sophomore Steve DeLong ready to join solid starters Earl Faison, Bob Petrich and George Gross.

Also available are veterans Fred Moore and Howard Kindig.

LINEBACKERS—

Co-captain and middle linebacker Chuck Allen heads a solid corps of returning veterans that includes second team all-league selection Frank Buncom and rookie standout of 1965, Rick Redman.

BACKS—

Safeties Kenny Graham and Bud Whitehead and cornerback Speedy Duncan have a lock on three positions after each enjoyed his finest year in 1965.

Duncan and Graham were second team all-league selections and Duncan set an AFL record for punt returns with 464 yards. Whitehead was the league's second-leading pass interceptor with seven.

Occupying the vacancy at corner back, caused by the departure of Jim Warren and Dick Westmoreland to Miami, is Miller Farr.

PRESS BOX INFORMATION

Balboa Stadium press box is available on a limited basis to working press only. This includes newspapermen, radio and television broadcasters and technicians. Accredited scouts are welcome on the roof of the press box.

Doug Moore is the public address announcer and Dick Johnston handles the intercom. Bob King is chief statistician.

Halftime interviews, spotters and color men will be made available providing there is sufficient notice.

Requests for credentials should be directed to Jerry Wynn.

Western Union arrangements should be made by contacting Joe Brucia, 232-2151, while telephone arrangements should be made through John Wilson, 232-7782.

CHAMPIONSHIP GAME STORY

It was the same two teams which had met in the 1964 Championship game with the scene shifting from the East to the West Coast. But there obviously was no "hometown advantage" for the San Diego Chargers.

Coach Lou Saban's Buffalo Bills found the 59-degree Dec. 26 weather much to their liking in San Diego's Balboa Stadium, rolling to a 23-0 victory before 30,361 downhearted fans.

San Diego's offensive unit was unable to generate any type of serious attack after the first quarter. The Jack Kemp-led Bills broke loose in the second period.

Kemp teamed with end Ernie Warlick for the initial score, a 18-yard pass play capping a 60-yard drive. Just 2:20 later, the Bills struck again on a 74-yard punt return by Butch Byrd. At halftime it was Buffalo ahead, 14-0.

In the second half, the Chargers were able to contain Buffalo's ground game and Kemp's passing, but couldn't stop the talented toe of place kicker Pete Gogolak. His soccer-style kicks connected twice in the third quarter from 11 and 39 yards away and once more in the final period from 32 yards.

ALL-STAR GAME STORY

The 1965 American Football League All-Star game saw a Champion vs. All-Star contest for the first time.

Buffalo's champion Bills were faced with the task of battling the best and a duo of New York's Joe Namath and San Diego's Lance Alworth proved too much. The All-Stars won, 30-19.

A crowd of 35,572 in Houston's Rice Stadium saw the All-Stars coached by Sid Gillman of the Chargers, come from a 13-6 halftime deficit to score 17 third-quarter points.

Namath completed six of 10 passes in the second half, two of them touchdown strikes to Alworth. San Diego's Frank Buncom was named the game's outstanding defensive player.

SAN DIEGO CHARGERS HISTORY

The San Diego Chargers had their beginning in Los Angeles as the sixth franchise of the American Football League. More often than not though, the Chargers have been associated with being first.

Much of the credit belongs to Sid Gillman. Between the initiation of the franchise by President Barron Hilton and his father, Conrad, and the opening of the 1960 season, Gillman was named to the dual role of general manager-head coach. The G. M. job he inherited from Frank Leahy, who was forced to resign due to illness a few months after taking the post.

Gillman's outstanding organizational ability and full knowledge of football enabled the Chargers to "get the jump" on most AFL rivals in forming first-class front office and playing units.

Ron Mix . . . Paul Lowe . . . Ralph Anderson . . . Don Norton . . . Howard Clark . . . Howie Ferguson . . . Ernie Wright . . . Charlie Flowers . . . Volney Peters . . . Ron Nery and Ageless Ben Agajanian were among those in the combination of youth and experience that Gillman welded together to produce the league's first Western Division champions.

That initial year saw Hilton take his fight for rights to Flowers, Mississippi's All-American running back, to the courts—and come out a winner.

It also saw more than 300 aspirants of all shapes and sizes answer a Gillman tryout camp call. While it focused national attention on the Chargers, it did little to help Sid produce the club which battled Houston in the initial championship game.

The Oilers, led by the combination of quarterback George Blanda and halfback Billy Cannon, prevailed before 32,183 of their hometown fans by 24-16 on Jan. 1, 1961.

The game, oddly enough, was to be the last in which the Chargers were identified as representing Los Angeles.

The Chargers' on-the-field success was not reflected satisfactorily at the box-office—and so Owner Hilton began to listen attentively to San Diego's request that he move his franchise 100 miles south.

Finally, convinced by civic leaders that San Diego could and would support a major league franchise, Hilton received official sanction from the league to move on Feb. 10, 1961.

Among the stipulations San Diego agreed to was the double-decking and enlarging of Balboa Stadium to increase seating capacity from 20,000 to 34,000.

The beautiful and smogless Southern California city greeted the Chargers wth open arms. The newspapers, radio, television and the Greater San Diego Sports Association all worked directly or indirectly in promoting ticket sales.

The Chargers, in turn, became the scourge of the AFL, compiling a 15-game (including four pre-season games) winning streak. San Diego was the home of the Western Division titlists with five weeks remaining in the 1961 schedule.

San Diego's four-man defensive line of Earl Faison, Bill Hudson, Ron Nery and Ernie Ladd became known as the "Fearsome Foursome" and was as readily recognized throughout the country as most offensive backfields.

Injuries, however, finally caught up with the Chargers and they lost two of their final three games —and again the championship contest to Houston.

The Oilers took some of the Christmas Eve joy out of the lives of 29,556 San Diegans by scoring a 10-3 triumph.

Even with the title being retained by Houston, the Chargers first year in San Diego was a memorable one.

From the opening pre-season game crowd of 12,304 sunbathers—the thermometer rose to 95 degrees—who watched the Chargers trim the Oilers, 27-14, in a stadium which resembled a Roman ruins because of the expansion underway, the Chargers gained momentum. They hit their attendance peak of 33,788 fans for their Nov. 19 clash with the Dallas Texans and responded with a 24-14 victory.

In that game safetyman Charlie McNeil made the Chargers' 43rd pass interception to establish a new pro football record that was increased to 49 interceptions by the season's end.

The average attendance at Charger games was 27,859 as opposed to 15,768 that initial AFL season operating in Los Angeles. In all, 340,848 watched the Chargers in person in 1961.

Another important development for the Chargers and the fast-growing city of San Diego was the birth of the AFL All-Star game. The first such contest, pitting the premier performers of the Western Division against their counterparts of the Eastern Division, took place Jan. 7, 1962 in Balboa Stadium under the sponsorship of the San Diego Junior Chamber of Commerce.

To show that the Chargers were not merely a novelty to Greater San Diego, invitations—which exceeded 500 in less than six months in '61—to speak to service clubs, youth groups, church groups, military organizations and the imprisoned soared in 1962.

And Charger ticket sales passed the 10,000 mark for the first time, as fans anticipated another championship year.

However, the year was one of futility and fatality for the Chargers. Perhaps an omen of things to come occurred on the eve of St. Valentine's day when popular Bob Laraba from Texas Western was killed in an automobile accident. From then on, tragedy struck the Chargers with eerie frequency.

For instance, Paul Lowe, one of the fastest climax runners in the game didn't carry the ball all season long after fracturing his forearm in the second preseason game of the year. He sat out the first game with a pulled muscle. Other luminaries like Earl Faison, Chuck Allen, Lance Alworth, Charlie McNeil, Wayne Frazier and Bert Coan missed more than half of the season and a grand total of 23 players, including the aforementioned, missed two or more contests. With so many vital organs not functioning, the Chargers staggered through the season with a 4-10 mark, finishing third in the division behind the AFL champion Kansas City Chiefs (at the time the Dallas Texans).

The year 1963 proved to be something else again. Early in the year the Chargers acquired the rights to veteran quarterback Tobin Rote from the Buffalo Bills, marking one of the most important and significant negotiations in young Charger history.

Rote was to become the league's passing champion and guide the Chargers to their third Western Division title and first AFL championship.

With Alworth, Lincoln, Faison, Ladd, Allen, Lowe and friends healthy, the Chargers became the scourge of the league — and pro football — to compile an 11-3 regular season record before crushing Boston's Patriots, the Eastern Division titlists, 51-10, in the championship game.

The Chargers have made many significant contributions to the AFL insofar as personnel is concerned what with former Charger defensive backfield coach Jack Faulkner taking over the head coaching and general managerial duties with the Denver Broncos in the spring of '62. Two months previously Don Klosterman left the Chargers as Director of Player Personnel to accept a similar job with the Chiefs (Texans). Al LoCasale replaced Klosterman.

And a year later end coach Al Davis became head coach and general manager of the Oakland Raiders.

Both Faulkner and Davis were named "Coach of the Year" in their first seasons away from the Chargers. Hugh (Bones) Taylor next left the Chargers and become head coach of the Oilers in 1964.

Walt Hackett, at the time chief assistant to John Bridgers at Baylor, replaced Faulkner and Tom Bass, an assistant coach at San Diego State College, took over for Taylor.

The club ownership underwent a change in the spring of 1963. President Barron Hilton, anxious to convince San Diego that the club was a resident and not a transient, sold more than one-third interest to local businessman John Mabee, James Copley, George Pernicano, Kenneth Swanson and M. L. Bengtson.

Although the Chargers could not equal their brilliant play of the preceding year in 1964, they still went on to capture their fourth Western Division title in five years with a record of 8-5-1.

The season ended on a disappointing note, however, when San Diego—minus Alworth and with Lincoln injured early in the game—lost to Buffalo, 20-7, in the Championship Game at Buffalo.

The 1964 season marked the end of Rote's 15-year pro football career and the star quarterback was feted with a day in his honor at Balboa Stadium. Later to announce their retirements were two of San Diego's most popular defensive stars—McNeil and linebacker Emil Karas.

The Chargers roared to their third successive Western Division title in 1965 with a record of 9-2-3, the best in pro football.

Leading the league in every offensive and defensive category, the Chargers received sensational performance from Lowe, Alworth, Speedy Duncan and John Hadl.

Lowe set a new AFL rushing record of 1,121 yards and was named "Player of the Year." Alworth became fully recognized as the greatest pass receiver in the game by gaining 1,602 yards, second highest total in AFL history. The flashy Duncan set a league record for punt returns with 364 yards, and Hadl, in his first full year at quarterback, blossomed into the league's No. 1 passer.

Still there was no silver lining at the end of the rainbow. The Chargers were humbled by Buffalo, 23-0, in the Championship game at San Diego.

An eventful "off-season" saw such developments as the departure of Chuck Noll, defensive coach since 1960, to the Baltimore Colts; the acquisition of new assistant coaches Charlie Waller from Clemson and Harry Johnston from San Diego State, and the blockbuster announcement of the expansion of the two pro football leagues under one banner.
